Analysis on Managerial Role of the Head of Primary Healthcare Centers in the Implementation of Recording and Reporting System of Maternal and Child Health Local Area Monitoring by Village Midwives in North Minahasa, 2011
xiii + 122 pages + 4 tables + 4 figures + 13 enclosures

The purpose of PWS-KIA reporting and recording system was to monitor pregnant women and under-five children health and to assess program successfulness. Head of primary healthcare center (puskesmas) had a managerial role, and he/she had to do the role adequately. However, monitoring standard was not done properly in the implementation of information distribution and supervision monitoring. This was related to the managerial role of the head of puskesmas who was responsible for PWS-KIA reporting and recording.

Objective of this study was to explain the role of the head of puskesmas in relation with personal, information givers, and decision makers in PWS-KIA reporting and recording done by village midwives. This was a qualitative study with cross sectional approach. Data were collected through in-depth interview to 8 heads of puskesmas as main informants. Triangulation informants were 8 Bikor, 8 village midwives, and a head of family health unit of local district health office. Content analysis was applied in the data analysis.

Results of the study showed that a number of heads of puskesmas in city center and suburban with adequate and inadequate reporting and recording system had not conducted monitoring in team; had not done supervision and information distribution or feedback when there was a problems; reporting forms were insufficient. Some heads of puskesmas in suburban did not submit results of their activities to related institutions. Evaluation and assessment of midwives work performance were done directly through DP3 assessment.

In conclusion, similarity was found between heads of puskesmas in suburban and in the city center with adequate and in adequate reporting and recording; they had not given motivation and coordination properly, had not controlled supply of forms problems. The differences were that heads of puskesmas in the city center had given information regarding to reporting and recording properly to the related institutions. On the other hand, heads of puskesmas in suburban had not given reporting and recording adequately, and they had not conducted evaluation and given proper information to related institutions.

Key words : PWS-KIA, reporting recording, managerial role of the head of puskesmas
