DoJu (Donat Jeruju),

A Healthy Donut and A Cancer Prevention Created By Undip Students

You must have already familiar with donuts, then what is so special about Jeruju donuts (or DoJu)? Let's find out!

Inovasita Alifdini, Luri Nurlaila Syahid, Yochi Okta Andrawina, Muhammad Syaifudien Bahry, and Bagus Upaya Saputra are the students of Oceanography and Chemical Engineering, Diponegoro University. Since a year ago, they have been playing with their creativity to make a new innovation in the form of donuts. This donuts are made from Jeruju Mangrove (Acanthus ilicifolius) species which contains a glucoside compound, alkanoid, flavonoids and steroids. According to experts, flavonoids have a cancer preventive substance and anti-bacterial.

"I want to make a donut that was not only filling your stomach but also rich in benefits," said Luri when met her at the FPIKUNDIP.

This Jeruju donut innovation is originated from Luri and her team participation in the Entrepreneurship Student Creativity Program (PKM-K). Initially, a woman who was born on February 9th, 1995 has not figured out the effective way to market their products. However, after following several coaching clinic from Tim Tujuh Belas UNDIP PKM-K, now DoJu could be found in the nearby stores.

"Many things have not previously been unthinkable, but then I got a lot of feedbacks that opening my mind and growing my business," said Luri that is currently assisted by an employee to help her with the market.

DoJu sold with two types of varians: wet and dry donuts (cookies). For wet donuts, she sold it on campus cafetaria, as well as nearby shops, while the dry donut marketed to the outside of this city. Now, DoJu has been certified by Household Food Industry (Pangan Industri Rumah Tangga/PIRT).

"In the near future, I want DoJu later be known as souvenirs of Semarang, in addition to spring rolls and tofu meatballs," Luri added. She also said that she is currently taking care of halal certification for DoJu.
