DEVELOPMENT OF SELF-MANAGEMENT SUPPORT THROUGH INDEPENDENT HEALTH CARE

ABSTRACT

Keywords: Self-Management Support, Independent Health Care, Cardiology.

Innovation level of the patients in physical and psychological skills and social support to patients and caregivers is 22% of patients. The care provided by the independent health care, in increasing the self-management support through independent health care, can be measured by using a scale. The outcome of the study was that the patients who received support had a 4% increase in quality of life. The results showed that the independent health care can improve the quality of life of patients. The study showed that the patients who received support had a 4% increase in quality of life. The results showed that the independent health care can improve the quality of life of patients.

Additional: The independent health care can improve the quality of life of patients.