NOTE

In this international seminar on Language Maintenance and Shift 7 (LAMAS 7 for short), we try to do the new paradigm, that is publishing the proceeding after the seminar was held. The positive aspect of the paradigm is that the presenters of the seminar have opportunity to revise their paper based on the responses of the audience. However, it takes longer time to process the proceeding until it is ready to distribute. Therefore, we apologize for being late.

In this opportunity, we would like to extent our deepest gratitude to Balai Bahasa Jawa Tengah for continuously cooperation in conducting the seminar. Thanks also go to the Dean of the Faculty of Humanities, the Head and the Secretary of the Master Program in Linguistics Diponegoro University, without whom the seminar would not have been possible. We would also express our special thanks to committee for putting together the seminar that gave rise to this compilation of papers.

We would like to thank Mrs. Shu-Chuan Chen, Ph.D. from Asia University Taiwan, Dr. Tupas Topsie Ruanni, from National Institute of Education Singapore, Drs, Pardi M.Hum. from Balai Bahasa Jawa Tengah; Prof. Ketut Artawa, Ph.D. from Udayana University, and Dr. Suharno, M.Ed. from Diponegoro University, as invited speakers in plenary sessions, and to all of the participants of the seminar.

Semarang, September, 25th 2017

Abstract

The linguist has categorized Sundanese dialects to be some part of dialects. However, in the same dialect, Sundanese people do sound changes in their pronunciation. For that reason, this research was conducted to identify the sound change do by Sundanese people. In this research, the researchers use Jujun Junaedi's Sundanese speech entitled "Nikah" as the object. To support this research, the researchers use theory by Campbell (2004) and apply descriptive qualitative as the research method. Based on theory by Campbell, assimilation and deletion are found as two types of sound change do by Jujun Junaedi. In assimilation, there are total contact progressive assimilation and partial contact progressive assimilation. While, vowel and syllable deletion are found in Jujun Junaedi's speech as part of kind sound deleted; whereas, apheresis and apocope are found based on the position of the sound deleted.

Keywords: Sundanese, sound change, assimilation, deletion

INTRODUCTION

Indonesia is a country that consists of many islands. Each island has distinctive characteristics that distinguish them from one another, and one of them is language. Language uses in an island can be more than one language, even when the same language uses it can be different since it pronounces or uses in different society. De Kuthy states in Rahmawati (2013) that language is social phenomenon. Therefore, it is natural to assume that the structure of society has some impact on the language of the speakers of that society.

Java Island is one of the biggest islands in Indonesia where many languages use by different people in different society. Each of the most well-known language in Java Island is Sundanese. It spreads in some places in West java, Banten and North Java. According to Nothofer in Junawaroh (2010:101) Sundanese has four dialects, those are Banten, Bogor, Priangan and Cirebon. The forth dialects possibly have similarities but it also have differences. One of the differences occurs in phonological side.

According to Odden (2013:2) phonology is one of the core fields that compose the discipline of linguistics, which is the scientific study of language structure. While Jensen (1993: 1) says that phonology is concerned with the sound patterns of language. In addition, there is phenomenon happens in a language that called 'sound change'. As Sundanese is a language, thus there is also sound change in Sundanese, for instance, when most Priangan sundanese pronounce sendal as [sendal], the other Priangan Sundanese pronouce sendal as [senal]. It is quite interesting because not all Sundanese do this.

Thus, in this research, the researchers tend to analyze the sound change in Sundanese. A phenomenon of sound change in Sundanese is found in Jujun Junaedi speech entitled "Nikah". Jujun Junaedi is one of well-known Sundanese da'i or Islamic preacher. He is a da'i, which come from Garut, regency in west Java. For that reason, in this research the researchers conduct the research to find the sound change occur in Jujun Junaedi speech entitle "Nikah".

The significance of this research is for anybody who interesting about the kinds of sound change. Then it used for education purposes related to ethnic language in Indonesia. This study used as a reference and information in learning and conducting further research on Sundanese

RESEARCH METHOD

The methodology used in this study is qualitative method. Data analysis in qualitative research consists of preparing and organizing the data. The data can be text data as in transcripts or image data as in photographs. According to Denzin and Lincoln in Creswell (2007: 36):

“Qualitative research is a situated activity that locates the observer in the world. It consists of a set of interpretive, material practices that make the world visible. These practices transform the world. They turn the world into a series of representation, including field note, interviews, conversations, photographs, recordings, and memos to the self. At this level, qualitative research involves an interpretive, naturalistic approach to the world. This means that qualitative researchers study things in their natural setting, attempting to make sense of, or interpret, phenomena in terms of the meaning people bring to them.”

Therefore, by using qualitative research the researchers tend to collect the data in the field at the site where participants' experience the issue or problem. The data need on this research takes from a recording voice; it takes from a speech from a Sundanese Islamic preacher. He is Jujun Junaedi, a well-known Islamic preacher in Sundanese. The speech took is a speech entitle “Nikah” that posted in 4shared, a search engine for music and other kinds of documents. After the recording has been transcript, then it is collected and classified based on kinds of sound changes by Campbell (2004).

DISCUSSION

KINDS OF SOUND CHANGES

There is no generally accepted definition of sound change. It certainly includes phonologization, whereby an automatic phonetic property evolves into a language-specific phonological one (Garret: 2015). For some analysts, the phenomenon of sound change also encompasses phonological change with other origins, such as dialect contact, paradigm regularization, or structural simplification. There are 4 kinds of sound change based on Campbell (2004), they are assimilation, dissimilation, deletion, insertions.

Based on the research, the researchers found that many words through the sound change in Jujun Junaedi speech. After identified the recording, the kinds of sound change found are:

Assimilation

Campbell (2004:28) says that assimilation means one sound becomes similar to another. While, Burleigh (2005: 89) argues that assimilation is more specifically, the articulation of one sound influences the articulation of a neighboring sound in that a speech organ either prolongs a distinctive feature of a preceding sound or anticipates a distinctive feature of a following sound. It is dived by three kinds, they are:

- a. The first categorization (although there is of course no logical order) distinguishes assimilation between two consecutive sounds, called contiguous assimilation, or contact assimilation [Kontaktassimilation]; and between two sounds further apart, known as non-contiguous assimilation, or distance assimilation, or distant assimilation [Fernassimilation].
- b. The second categorization distinguishes between assimilation brought about by the influence of a preceding sound, called progressive assimilation [vorauswirkende Assimilation], or perseverative assimilation; and assimilation brought about by the influence of a following sound, known as regressive assimilation [rückwirkende Assimilation], or anticipatory assimilation,
- c. The fourth categorization distinguishes between (a) partial assimilation, where the two sounds involved remain distinguishable through at least one of the distinctive features, and (b) total assimilation, where the two sounds involved become identical.

From the research, the researchers found two kinds of assimilation. The assimilations found are:

Total Contact Progressive Assimilation

1. Assimilation [g] to [ŋ]

One of the data found of this assimilation is:

manggih:/manjih/ → /maŋih/ 'find'

On the data above, there's a sound [ŋ] appears before sound [g]. Jujun Junaedi assimilates the sound [g] to sound [ŋ] and it changes to sound [ŋ]. Since sound [g] stands after [ŋ] that condition the changes, it calls as progressive. While, because [g] adjacent to [ŋ], the change is contact. Then, the data above is total assimilation because sound [g] become identical to [ŋ].

Other data that included to this class are:

mangga: /manja/ → /maŋa/ 'please'

enggeus: /eŋgeus/ → /eŋeus/ 'finish' nyanggakeun: /nyangakeun/ → /nyanakeun/ 'please'

angger: /aŋger/ → /aŋer/ 'still'

ninggali: /niŋgali/ → /niŋali/ 'look'

sanggul: /saŋgul/ → /saŋul/ 'hair bun' tatangga: /tatanga/ → /tataŋa/ 'neighbour'

All data above are assimilation. In this case, both sound [g] and [ŋ] are included into velar voiced consonant sound. However, [ŋ] is the only one sound that influences the sound [g], since sound [ŋ] is nasal sound. Therefore, in the data above, [g] is nasalize when nasal [ŋ] precedes it. From the data, we also can find that the assimilation on Jujun's speech only happens when two phonemes from same articulatory position placed side by side. Besides, the similarities on the articulatory position, there are also other similarities. We can see from the data that the phonemes that affected and effected are placed in the middle of the word. Based on this finding, it can be infer that the sound change on Jujun's speech only happens when two same articulatory sound placed in the middle of a word. Besides, even though there is a sound change on how the word pronounces, still no difference meaning between the origins words with the sound change word.

2. Assimilation [d] to [n]

One of the data found of this assimilation is:

pondok: /pondok/ → /ponok/ 'short'

Sound [d] on the data above assimilates to sound [n]. Thus, instead of pronounces as /pondok/ Jujun pronounces the word as /ponok/. On the data above, sound [d] totally change to sound [n], so it istotal assimilation. Then, since [d] next to [n], it iscontact assimilation. While, because [d] stands after [n] that condition the changes, the data above is progressive assimilation.

Other data of this assimilation are:

sunda: /sunda/ → /suna/ 'sundanese'

nyandung: /nyanduŋ/ → /nyanuŋ/ 'polygami'

landong: /landoŋ/ → /lanoŋ/ 'medicine'

bendu: /bendu/ → /benu/ 'angry'

indit: /indit/ → /init/ 'go'

On the data above, all sound [d] and [n] are included into dental alveolar voiced consonant sound. While, the difference only takes on how the sound articulate. [d] is articulated stop while [n] is articulate nasal. However, [n] influenced the sound [d]. Therefore, in the data above, [d] is nasalized when nasal [n] precedes it.

Partial Contact Progressive Assimilation

1. Assimilation [j] to [ŋ]

panjang: /panjaŋ/ → [paŋaŋ] 'long'

Based on the data above, there is sound [n] before [j]. In this case [n] influences sound [j]. However, the change is partial because it only takes on some of the feature of conditioning [n]. On the data above, it becomes more like the [ŋ]. While, it is contact assimilation, because sound [j] next to [ŋ]. While, since [d] stand after [n] that condition the changes, the data above is progressive assimilation.

Other data of this assimilation are:

tunjuk: /tunjuk/ → /tuŋuk 'index finger'

sinjang: /sinjaŋ/ → /siŋaŋ/ 'traditional cloth from Sundanes'

Both sound [j] and [ŋ] on the data above are included to palatal voiced consonant sound. While, there are difference between them, sound [j] included to stop while [ŋ] is nasal voice. As mentioned before, [n] influence the sound [j], and it makes sound [j] change to [ŋ]. Since sound [j] change to [ŋ], [j] is nasalize when nasal [n] precedes it.

Deletion

Deletion is the omission of one or more sounds in spoken language, it also called as elision. Deletion can be described in terms of two categorizations, based on the kind and the position of the sound omitted. The categorization based on kind of sound omitted distinguishes between:

- a. deletion of consonants
- b. deletion of vowels
- c. deletion of whole syllables.

While, based on the position of the sound omitted there are three kinds of deletion, they are:

- a. Aphaeresis or apheresis, it is the deletion of the beginning of a word
- b. syncope, it is the deletion in the middle of a word
- c. Apocope, it is the deletion at the end of a word.

Sound Omitted

There are two kinds of deletion found in Jujun's speech entitle "Nikah", based on the omitted sound, they are:

1. Vowel deletion

From the data, it has been found four words that include to vowel deletion. The data are:

/anu/ → /nu/ 'which'

The deletion vowel on the data above is vowel [a]. Based on this deletion, there is only sound [nu] pronounces by Jujun Junedi.

/upami/ → /pami/ 'if'

On the data above, sound /upami/ pronounces as /pami/. In this case, we can see that vowel [u] is deleted.

/erek/ → /rek/ 'will'

When Jujun said /rek/, it can be seen that word /rek/ actually is a deletion of word /erek/. On the data above, the speaker deletes sound [e].

2. Syllable deletion

Based on the research, there are five words included into syllable deletion, the words are:

/kumaha/ → /kuma/ 'how'

/kuma/ is a deletion of a word /kumaha/, in English /kumaha/ is 'how'. Since the data above deleted phonemes [h] and [a], this deletion is the deletion of syllable. The deleted syllable is -ha.

/enggeus/ → /geus/ 'finish'

The origin data above is /enggeus/. It has two syllables, they are eng- and -geus. On his speech Jujun sometime pronounces /enggeus/ as /geus/. It means that he deletes syllable eng- from the origin word.

Similar, with two previous data, the speaker also deleted the syllables on the following words.

/encan/ → /can/ 'not yet'

/lamun/ → /mun/ 'if'

/entong/ → /tong/ 'don't'

The Sound Deleted Position

There are two kinds of deletion found from Jujun's speech entitle "Nikah" based on the position of the deleted sound. The deletions found are:

1. Apheresis

There are nine data found as apheresis, the data are:

/upami/ → /pami/ 'if'

Word /upami/ pronounces /pami/ instead of /upami/. Vowel [u] is deleted. Since vowel [u] stands on the beginning and it is deleted, the deletion above is apheresis. While, even a vowel is deleted, there is no meaning change.

/henteu/ → /teu/ 'no'

On his speech, Jujun pronounces /henteu/ as /teu/. In this data, there is syllable hen- which is deleted. As the deleted syllable stands at the start, the selection above is apheresis deletion. Other apheresis data found on Jujun speech are:

/anu/ → /nu/ 'which'

/enggeus/ → /geus/ 'finish'

/encan/ → /can/ 'not yet'

/lamun/ → /mun/ 'if'

/entong/ → /tong/ 'don't'

/erek/ → /rek/ 'will'

2. Apocope

From the research, the researchers found two deletion which is included as apocope. The data are below:

/naha/ → /na/ 'why'

On the data above, Jujun pronounces /na/ instead of /naha/. It is included into apocope because the deletion takes on the end of the word.

/kumaha/ → /kuma/ 'how'

Similar with the first data, since the end of the word is deleted; the data above is included into apocope.

CONCLUSION

After the research is conduct and discuss, it has been found that two kinds of sound changes found in Jujun Junedi speech entitle "Nikah". Those are, a) assimilation, which can be divided into total contact progressive assimilation, and partial contact progressive assimilation. b) deletion, that can be differ by the kinds sound omitted and the position of the sound deleted. Based on the kinds of omitted, there are vowel and syllable deletion. While, based on the position of the sound deleted, there are apheresis and apocope.
